Planning an event – from a wedding to a dinner party – always comes with its challenges; once you’ve pinned down the date, the location and the food, the amount of decisions which still need to be made can feel overwhelming. Keeping things simple is the key to a good celebration, and when friends sit down together all they need is a presentable table and good conversation.

Smart cutlery, sparkling glassware, flowers and placements will add an edge to a setting, alongside carefully considered napkin rings which can become a talking point in themselves. From marble to textured gold and brass, choose the right accessory to bring a frisson to your fare with our design guide below.

Napkin rings don’t have to be classic, and a host of designers have cottoned on to the fact that intricately embellished napkin rings can spark a real sense of joy when sitting down to lunch. L’Objet, which creates beautifully crafted homeware with a bohemian eccentricity, has played with mythical themes in a collaboration with the Haas Brothers, in the ‘Monster Ball’ set of napkin rings, which are contemporary adornments in their own right. Crafted from antique gold brass and with a polished finish, these textured critters are sure to invite a comment or two.
